Cochrane Austria is delighted to be hosting the 2015 Cochrane Colloquium in Vienna, arguably the most prestigious meeting of evidence-based medicine in the world. We expect more than 1000 international researchers, opinion leaders, and health experts to attend the 2015 colloquium, providing your organisation with a uniquely efficient opportunity to promote your work and network with delegates.

Cochrane Colloquia are more than a scientific conference; we provide training at basic and advanced levels, opportunities for scientific exchange and meetings, promotion of the highest-quality research in evidence-based healthcare, and the opportunity to further methods and ensure that all researchers can meet the ongoing challenge of addressing globally important healthcare questions. In Vienna we will also have the opportunity to encourage new contributors from Europe and the German-speaking region as well as cement partnerships with organisations that share Cochrane’s commitment to evidence-based health care.

In 2015 our plenaries will focus on “Filtering the information overload for better decisions” as well as other important topics for Cochrane and evidence-based healthcare organisations worldwide.
